List Of Unanswerable Questions

The phrase unanswered questions or undeclared questions (Sanskrit avyākṛta, Pali: avyākata - "unfathomable, unexpounded"), in Buddhism, refers to a set of common philosophical questions that Buddha refused to answer, according to Buddhist texts. The Pali texts give only ten, the Sanskrit texts fourteen questions.

Almost always the first one is preferred over the second one. The first has the advantage that the implementation of the List can change (to a LinkedList for example), without affecting the rest of the code. This will be a difficult task to do with an ArrayList, not only because you will need to change ArrayList to LinkedList everywhere, but also because you may have used ArrayList specific ...

A question is an utterance which typically functions as a request for information. Questions can thus be understood as a kind of illocutionary act in the field of pragmatics or as special kinds of propositions in frameworks of formal semantics such as alternative semantics or inquisitive semantics. The information requested is expected to be provided in the form of an answer.

Question: "Is God man-made? Did man create the idea of God?" Answer: Some people argue that God is man-made; that is, the concept of God is merely a human fabrication handed down through the generations from those who didn't know any better. They claim that the idea of a God or gods is simply the way human beings explain things that are too difficult to understand.

Actually the question is not quite as silly, or as impossible to answer, as all that. In common practice for loose-tube cables (there are other cable types), each tube has 12 color-coded fibers (except for "less than 12-fibers total" cables) and higher fiber count cables have multiple color-coded tubes, with fiber count stepped up in units of 12. So a 288 fiber cable will have two large units ...
