Compressed sensing (also known as compressive sensing, compressive sampling, or sparse sampling) is a signal processing technique for efficiently acquiring and reconstructing a signal, by finding solutions to underdetermined linear systems. This is based on the principle that, through optimization, the sparsity of a signal can be exploited to recover it from far fewer samples than required by ...

In mathematics, computer science and operations research, mathematical optimization (alternatively spelled optimisation) or mathematical programming is the selection of a best element (with regard to some criterion) from some set of available alternatives.. In the simplest case, an optimization problem consists of maximizing or minimizing a real function by systematically choosing input values ...

Introduction. The human immune system is a sensory system for intrinsic and extrinsic environmental factors. Much like other sensory systems, the immune system is dependent on sensory inputs during its development, and germ-free mice have severe immune system defects (Gensollen et al., 2016). Also, in humans, early-life exposures sensed by the immune system influence the risk of developing ...

Box and Cox (1964) developed the transformation. Estimation of any Box-Cox parameters is by maximum likelihood. Box and Cox (1964) offered an example in which the data had the form of survival times but the underlying biological structure was of hazard rates, and the transformation identified this.
