- One of the most effective critical thinking tools I've ever come across is the five why's. When I was a young analyst as a consultant, I was at a client engagement and I was responsible for doing a lot of analysis. One morning, I did a bunch of analysis around some things that my client was purchasing. When I went to lunch with my project manager, he said "what have you been doing today?"

- When you go to generate new ideas to run things better you need to think critically about the way your business runs. I like to look at three things, a business model blow-up, a revenue blow-up, and a cost blow-up. On the business model blow-up, fundamentally rethink about how you go to market. Even rethink what your market actually is.
