The labor theory of value (LTV) is a heterodox theory of value that argues that the economic value of a good or service is determined by the total amount of "socially necessary labor" required to produce it, rather than by the use or pleasure its owner gets from it (demand) and its scarcity value (supply).. LTV is usually associated with Marxian economics, though it also appears in the ...

The expansion of our wealth is only possible so long as the oil supply continues to expand, says oil expert Dr. Colin Campbell. The financial and investment community is beginning to accept the reality of Peak Oil, which ends the First Half of the Age of Oil, during which banks created capital by lending more than they had on deposit, being confident that tomorrow's expansion, fueled by cheap ...

The Atlantic has an article decrying the fact that economists are refusing to give behavioral economics a bigger role in introductory economics courses. I'm going to argue that this oversight is actually appropriate, even if behavioral economics provides many true observations about behavior. The core ideas of economics are extremely counterintuitive and are not accepted [...]
