The introspection illusion is a cognitive bias in which people wrongly think they have direct insight into the origins of their mental states, while treating others' introspections as unreliable. In certain situations, this illusion leads people to make confident but false explanations of their own behaviour (called "causal theories") or inaccurate predictions of their future mental states.

Do you want to change the world? Most of us would say "yes" but then we would have to consider how we go about doing that. The answer is: "One room at a time and this is the room for today."

AGENDA - SEL Conference

This established the first strong link between early cognitive development and the functions of a specific brain region. That gave encouragement to others that rigorous experimental work addressing brain-behavior relations was possible in infants.It also fundamentally altered the scientific understanding of PFC early in development; clearly it was not silent as accepted wisdom had held.
